Summary
The Institute of Space-Earth Environmental Research (ISEE) is recruiting for a postdoctoral researcher to proactively engage in research in collaboration with the ISEE faculty. Established as a joint usage/research center that interlinks space science and earth science, the Institute of Space-Earth Environmental Research (ISEE) works toward the mission to clarify the mechanisms and relationships between the Earth, the Sun, and cosmic space, treating them as a seamless system, and to contribute to solving issues related to the global environment and human society spreading in space. To achieve the mission, ISEE promotes researches based on the institute structure consisting of seven research divisions (Division of Integrated Studies, Division of Cosmic-Ray Research, Division of Heliospheric Research, Division of Ionospheric and Magnetospheric Research, Division of Meteorological and Atmospheric Research, Division for Land-Ocean Ecosystem Research, and Division for Chronological Research) and three research centers (Center for International Collaborative Research, Center for Integrated Data Science, and Center for Orbital and Suborbital Observations).
